Corn and soybean seed

Prices to climb

By JAMES A. SMITH
Extension Agent

Seeds may be in low supply for corn and soybeans. Prices of both seeds will be up. Some suppliers are quoting higher prices with limited availability of some varieties. Germination may be lower, particularly in soybean varieties. Soybean producers should have a germination test run now rather than selling the total crop with anticipation of higher prices. Germination tests run now will help you decide how much seed to buy.

Germination tests run now will help you decide how much seed to buy.

Seed germination may be lower than normal because of the wet harvest conditions. Germination may be lower, particularly in soybean varieties. Soybean producers should have a germination test run now rather than selling the total crop with anticipation of higher prices.